

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Disclosed are an information processing apparatus and an identifying method therefor that are used on a network. With preferential use of the identifier of a network card, the degree of demountability of that is the lowest, there is produced an identifier of the information processing apparatus. As a result of this, it is possible to minimize the changing of the identifier of the information processing apparatus.